

G.O.P. APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT

Ask Him to Rescue Them From Defeat in 1916

HAVE NO LEADER IN SIGHT

Republican Leaders Admit They May Have to Accept Progressivism—Say Feeling of Pessimism Grows Stronger as the Weeks Pass—A Sur Editorial.

New York, Sept. 23. Tory Republicans who helped to steel the presidential nomination from Theodore Roosevelt at Chicago last year are awakening to the desperate situation of their party.

Leaders who so far failed to gauge public sentiment as to expect Taft to go to a larger vote than Roosevelt realize that the party is without a leader who can command public confidence. Diligent searching of the ranks has failed to turn up a man who has the slightest chance to win the 1916 election.

In this strait many of the men who condoned a political theft are ready to repent, and are urging that the Republican nomination for president be thrust upon Theodore Roosevelt, even if it be necessary to accept Progressive policies.

New York Sun Speaks.

The New York Sun, a tory newspaper which rejoiced, last year, in the sudden nomination, today printed an article designed to show the strength of the repentance within the Republican party.

The Sun article, under a Washington date, is in part:

"The movement among Republicans to turn to Colonel Roosevelt as the leader in 1916 is growing with remarkable rapidity.

"The statement made yesterday in Salt Lake City by United States Senator George Sutherland, of Utah, predicting the nomination of Roosevelt three years hence on the Republican ticket, has added greatly to the interest with which Washington has been watching the turning of the political wheel. Coming from a senator who did not support Roosevelt last year and who always has been classed as a strong conservative, the interview caused much comment.

Says it is inevitable.

"Senator Sutherland, however, has only voiced publicly what many prominent Republican leaders have been saying beneath their breath for some time.

"Several weeks ago the Sun told of growing feeling in Washington that Roosevelt's nomination on the Republican ticket is inevitable, but since then the opinion among political leaders has become stronger. Many are convinced that they will again be obliged to support the colonel as the Republican standard bearer.

Bitterness Grows Less.

"The general feeling of tolerance toward this suggestion was shown of late in the guarded comment caused by Senator Sutherland's statement. The bitterness engendered in last year's campaign over Roosevelt's bolting of the ticket has been steadily growing less, and many Republicans have been seeking grounds of compromise on which they could go before the country with a chance of success.

"It is known that Senator Borah has long been of the opinion that Roosevelt is fast becoming the most available man to reunite the Republican party for victory in 1916. In conversation with his colleagues he has said there is no other course open to the Republicans by which to win."

Locust Lodge Party.

Miss Ella Goodfellow and the Misses Mary and Lill Lee entertained a party of relatives yesterday at Locust Lodge club. The following guests were present: Mrs. George McCullough, Miss Jane McCullough, Mrs. William McCullough, Mrs. Dick Reed, Mrs. Arthur Row, Mrs. James Goodlander, Pittsburgh, Mrs. D. D. Guppy, Mrs. Lilla Test, Mrs. James Staver, Mrs. Singleton Bell, Mrs. Agnes Weaver.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

DIVORCES GRANTED

Matters Disposed of Before Judge Smith in Argument Court.

Before Judge Smith, sitting in argument court yesterday, divorces were granted to Charles L. Peters from his wife, Elsie M. Peters and to Francis Leuwer against her husband, Dominicus Leuwer.

A libel in divorce was filed in the case of Josie Stull against her husband, Casner Stull.

William Melsey was before the court on the charge of desertion and non-support. He was placed under $100 bail to provide for his family and was ordered to pay the costs in the case in three months.

Melsey deserted his wife and children and left the county. The county commissioners discovered that he had gone to Olean, New York, and they sent an officer to that place a couple of weeks ago, and Melsey was brought here. He has found employment in this place.

SHOOK THE TOWN

A Number of Mysterious Explosions in This Vicinity.

A series of heavy detonations startled the people of this town last evening. Diligent inquiry today failed to disclose the cause of the explosions, but it is supposed the noise was caused by blasting in the direction of Rockton.

The explosions were heavy enough to shake houses in town.

FELL FROM WAGON AND SERIOUSLY HURT

Archie Shaw Seized With Vertigo While Delivering Coal

Archie Shaw, of the West Side, met with what might easily have been a fatal accident this morning. At about 11:30 Mr. Shaw was delivering coal at the brick works in the East End, and while standing up in the wagon he was seized with vertigo, falling to the brick pavement. He alighted on his head and shoulders.

A physician was hastily summoned and discovered that Mr. Shaw had broken his right wrist and was suffering from shock, his lower limbs being affected. He was removed to his home, where he lies in a serious condition, but it is believed that he will recover.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE

Heavy Automobile Crashes Into Hupmobile Last Evening.

Last evening about 5 o'clock a heavy automobile driven by Clearfield parties collided with a Hupmobile near the Riverview bridge. The latter machine was badly wrecked, and a small child in the car was slightly hurt.

THE STERN STORE

New Firm Preparing to Open The Store on Second Street.

The work of remodeling the store room in the bank building on Second street has been completed and Stern is now stocking the store with goods. This firm will carry a large assortment of exclusive men's furnishings and hats, and hope to secure a part of the patronage of the men of discriminating tastes in these goods. An effort will be made to carry the most desirable things in men's wear not usually found in stores in towns the size of Clearfield.

A tailoring department will be conducted in connection with the ready made articles to be had in the store, and orders for anything in the gentleman's furnishing line that is not carried in stock will be gladly ordered by the Messrs. Stern.

L. D. Stern, who will have full charge of the store, is a young and progressive merchant, who has been in business for some years in Lewistown. He is a man who is ready to take part in movements having the benefit of the town in view, is an ardent baseball fan and is also a firm believer in boosting the town in which he does business. He organized a board of trade and a merchants' association in Lewistown and in other ways has proven himself a most desirable citizen.

The people of Clearfield welcome most heartily to their town as energetic and as substantial a citizen as Mr. Stern, and they will no doubt give his store that patronage which it will merit.

The Stern store will be open for business on Saturday, September 27.

ON WEDDING TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond Will Visit Niagara Falls on Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond, who were married on Thursday last in Clearfield, are on a wedding trip to visit Niagara Falls, Buffalo and New York city. On their return they will reside at Punxsutawney, where the groom is employed on the B. & P. railroad.

Both are well known young people, the bride having resided at Munson. They have a host of friends who wish them a long and happy married life.

Compulsory Illuminations.

The west end of London is always ablaze with lights on the evening of the king's birthday, but no living Londoner can claim to have seen a general illumination of the metropolis. In his "Recollection and Reflection" J. R. Planché writes: "The last general illumination of London was that celebrating the battle of Waterloo. Now there are more beautiful displays, but this one was really general. Not a window in the smallest court but had its candle stuck in a lump of clay, while in houses of more pretension one blazed in every pane. Mobs paraded the metropolis from Hyde park corner to Whitechapel with cries of 'Light up' and smashed every window that did not swiftly display a dip in answer to the summons."

Penalties of Genius.

Genius and ill health, it would seem, often go hand in hand. At any rate, many of the greatest deeds that the world has seen performed have been accomplished by men physically infirm.

Darwin suffered so acutely from nervous exhaustion that he could only work for two hours a day at the most. Thackeray was frequently ill, Johnson nearly always in poor health, Dickens at the age of fifty-five was an old man, with shattered nerves, while Sir Walter Scott, a subject of spasms, was a chronic invalid during the later years of his life and died at the age of fifty-nine.

Milton, William Morris and Charles Keane, the actor, all were slaves to gout, and Milton was further handicapped by being blind. The poet Keats died of consumption when still quite young. Elizabeth Barrett Browning was an invalid for the greater part of her life.

Insanity claimed Dean Swift, while Rousseau and Cowper were insane during periods of their lives.

Light of the Fireflies.

It has been proved by experiments conducted by M. Ives, a chemist, that the light emitted by fireflies glows, worms and other insects is purely chemical and not in any way biological. M. Ives finds that this light is not extinguished by death. Of course after death some stimulus is necessary to excite it, but it can be produced in their tissues two years after death, which makes certain that it is chemical in origin.—New York World.

Her Way.

"There's a young woman who makes little things count." "How does she do it?" "Teaches arithmetic in a primary school."

SLAY AMERICAN MINE ENGINEER

Bandits in Mexico Murder Morris P. Root.

REFUGEES GIVE DETAILS.

Say Entire West Coast of Mexico is in State of Anarchy—Bands of Peons, Debauched With Liquor, Commit Numerous Crimes—Fate of Americans Undetermined.

San Francisco, Sept. 23. About 100 of the passengers who have just arrived here on the steamer Peru were refugees from points along the western coast of Mexico. Western Mexico is in a state of anarchy, they said. Rebel chiefs do not recognize one another, and in the interims between looting and murdering they fight among themselves.

Refugees from the state of Durango say that conditions there are terrible. The country is overrun with roving bands of peons debauched with liquor, who commit many crimes.

The refugees brought word of the murder of Morris P. Root, an American mining engineer, by a band of revolutionists. Root was the superintendent of the El Tigre mines at Tepic. While on his way to join employees of the company preparing to defend the mine property against attacks of guerrillas he was seized by a dozen bandits, disarmed and cut to pieces.

Root had been in Mexico for sixteen years. He was fifty years old.

Max Lambert, another American engineer, who came in on the Peru, had a narrow escape from bandits in the state of Tepic while defending his wife and child from an attack.

Americans in Rebels' Hands.

Mexico City, Sept. 18.—On the quick advance of General Trucey Aubert, the federal commander, who, with 1,000 men, was reported marching north to the relief of Torreon, may depend the safety of 100 Americans, including women and children, who were reported to have fallen into the hands of the rebels. The Americans are refugees who were proceeding overland to Saltillo from Torreon. They are in charge of Deputy Consul General J. C. Allen of Monterey.

Following President Wilson's warning to Americans to leave Mexico, Mr. Allen went to Torreon to warn the Americans there. The party of 100 gathered together under Mr. Allen's leadership started in the most available conveyances for Saltillo. There had been no railroad connection for months, and many of the party were obliged to walk. The Americans left Torreon on Sept. 1.

KILLS WIFE; SHOTS SELF

Accused Woman of Meeting Her Divorced Husband.

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—Harry Shappell, forty-seven years old, shot and killed his wife and then shot himself. He is dying in a hospital. Shappell charged his wife with meeting clandestinely her divorced husband.

The slayer's son, Thomas, fourteen years old, was in the house when the shooting occurred.

SWITCHING CHARGE TO BE INVESTIGATED

Rate for Hauling Coal From Clearfield Region Attacked

The Pennsylvania State Public Service Commission Friday will hear several complaints about switching charges in various cities in addition to holding the final hearing on the objections to the proposed schedule of telephone rates drafted by the commission for the whole state. These rates are complained of because they would wipe out all flat rates and put everything on a service basis.

The hearing on switching charges include, W. H. Cox & Co., Pittsburgh, against the Pennsylvania Railroad, for Tuesday, the Crucible Steel company of America against the Pennsylvania demurrage and switching, to Wednesday; American Plate Glass Co. B. Idgway, against Kane & Elk Railroad, alleged discrimination and demurrage for Thursday; and the complaint of the Manufacturers' association, of York and Lancaster counties, against the Pennsylvania railroad, alleging that the rate of hauling coal from the Clearfield region to York and Lancaster manufacturing plants is excessive and discriminatory.

Modern Witches.

Centuries have passed since "witches" were executed in England, but in very recent times they have suffered physical harm. Dr. Janssen knew a Norfolk man who died in 1888, and in the straits had joined with his two brothers in a slight expedition to the house of an old woman. They took her out of bed, and in the presence of half a dozen other people threw her into a pond, "where she would infallibly have been drowned, but that some who were not so mad as the rest cried out that she was sinking to the bottom and must be saved." The conclusive evidence against her was that she kept a black cat and wore a black silk dress on Sundays. In 1888 there was still alive, and master in an elementary school, one who, as a young man, had scratched a "witch" until the blood poured down, because she had "overlooked" him, and only so could his health be restored.—London Chronicle.

The Secret of Beauty.

There is a beauty secret not found in cosmetics and which does not linger in the perfume laden hangings of the parlor of the matron. It is a secret which any woman can possess, and the magic effect is almost instantly noted. The secret is merely a combination of repose and relaxation. A woman always appears to advantage. There is culture in a repose of manner that makes itself felt both at home and in public. This pose is itself in personal beauty. There is a suggestion of reserve intellectual strength more impressive than the unconscious of the woman who feels that her tongue or her body must be in motion to let the world know she is in it. At the same time the wear and tear will leave the marks of strain on complexion and figure which no cream or lotion can remove. To grow old gracefully and beautifully learn to take things easy. Repose is more beautiful than rouse and relaxation more body building than massage.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Fine For Mamma.

Little Sarah was watching her mother, who was ironing some linen. "Is it hard work to iron, mamma?" she asked.

"Pretty hard sometimes," the mother replied.

The little girl was thoughtful a moment; then she exclaimed:

"Oh, mamma, wouldn't it be fine if you had married a Chinese laundryman?"—Youngstown Telegram.

History Made by a Postage Stamp.

A postage stamp which played a part in history is told about by M. Bannan Varille in his book on the Panama canal. The incident occurred when the discussion over the relative merits of the Panama and Nicaragua routes was at its height. Bannan Varille had been working vigorously for the Panama route, making use of the two arguments of less cost and immunity from active volcanoes. One day he recalled that Nicaragua had issued a handsome stamp, showing a volcano in full activity. He at once sent to the dealers in foreign stamps in Washington, and obtained ninety of these stamps, which he forwarded to the ninety senators, along with his paper bearing the words: "Postage stamp of the republic of Nicaragua, an official witness of the volcanic activities of Nicaragua." The catastrophe at St. Pierre took place about this time, to deepen the impression of volcanic danger, and the Panama route was adopted by the narrow margin of four votes.—New York Post.

COMBINATION

Publishers, Advertisers

and Manufacturers Unite

By HOLLAND.

IN union there is strength. Did you ever write this in your copybook? Well, it is true, anyway.

One of the effective combinations of the business world is composed of publishers, advertisers and manufacturers. They are united in the effort to see that the public gets value received. Their interests are identical.

No one of the trio can make money without the others share it. And they cannot make money for themselves without making money for the public. The interests of all are interwoven so closely as to be practically identical.

You should join this combination and enjoy the benefits to be derived from it. Take full advantage of the advertising columns and be sure of getting a dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

ADVERTISEMENTS WILL KEEP YOU FULLY INFORMED.

They will tell you where to buy, when to buy, what to buy. It is true economy to read the advertisements, for they will insure your getting the greatest value when you spend your money.

CHEAP TRANSFER NEEDED.

Strangers visiting Clearfield have
been surprised that, with a population of about nine thousand people,
there is no means whereby citizens
might travel from one part of the
town to the other at a low rate of
fare. Some years ago there was established a motor cab service in Clear-
field, which for a time proved a
great convenience to the citizens, but
which was discontinued after cars
of the company had been destroyed
by fire. Since that disaster no effort has been made to give the people convenient transit.

With the opening of the rolling mill
the works and mill there will be
a demand for transfer service which
will accommodate hundreds of employees who will find work in these
industries and who must find homes
in various parts of the town. Unless
some sort of cab service at reason-
able rates of fare shall be established these people will have to walk long
distances to and from their work.
Can any capitalist doubt that a cab
service which would include in its
schedule the distant manufactories
would pay?

Aside from the fact that there is
need of a transfer service for mill
employees, the citizens who live in
sections of Clearfield a considerable
distance from the business section
would patronize a transfer service
which would enable them to reach the
central part of town in a few minutes
at a fair cost per ride. Will this enterprise, so full of possibilities
for the investor, wait for outside capital to inaugurate it?

THE WASHINGTON PARTY.

The Washington party made no
discouraging showing at the recent primaries. The fact that a judicious
fight overshadowed all other contests
prevented the party showing its full
strength. Had the primaries been
for the sole purpose of nominating
county candidates there is not the
least doubt that the Washington party would have been credited
with a much larger number of votes
than appear on the returns.

Regardless of what its opponents
may say, the Washington party still
lives, and the members of the party
are just as determined to stand by
their colors as they were when Colonel Roosevelt led the ticket last year. The voter who pledged his support to the cause of reform in 1912
is just as ready to give his vote to
the party next fall or in the coming
years. Defeat under the circumstances is not discouragement, but merely

spurs the Washington voters on to
renewed determination to add in the
fight against the forces of evil which
have control of the Republican and Democratic parties.

Nothing has happened since last
fall to prove that the people who
gave their support to the Washington
party are not sincere in their faith in
the ultimate triumph of honest political principles, in the inevitable over-
throw of the bosses and in the awakening of the people to the fact that
they can look for redress from wrong
to neither the Republican nor the Democratic party. The members
of the Washington party in Clearfield
county are not dismayed; they are no
ready to surrender to the enemy, and
they are in this fight to win with
candidates who are deserving of the support of every good citizen.

NOT INVITED.

The Pennsylvania Woman's Sur-
frage association states that neither
it as a body nor any of its branches has invited Elinore Pankhurst
the English militant suffragette, to visit
Pennsylvania. So far as is known
not a single American woman's sur-
frage organization has manifested a
desire to encourage militant methods of securing the ballot for American
women, and Mrs. Pankhurst is likely
to find a rather cool reception if she
visits Pennsylvania, especially after
the declaration of her emissary that
unless the English women secure the
ballot they will resort to bloodshed.

Mrs. Pankhurst and her kind are
the most potent agencies against gaining of the ballot to the women of England that exist. Anarchistic acts
have turned hundreds of thousands of
English women away from the cause,
and it is not at all likely that Ameri-
can women, who are gradually securing the suffrage by peaceful methods
will encourage this rampant, insane
woman from over the sea should she
attempt to carry out her program in
this country. It is to the credit of the Pennsylvania advocates of the
cause that they thus early serve notice upon Mrs. Pankhurst that lawless
ness is not part of the plan of American women in their effort to secure the ballot.

If every Washington voter will remain true to the principles of the party
the county candidates of that party
will be elected this fall.

About this time of year look for movings from the front porch to the parlor.

Watch the signs of Clearfield's prosperity on all sides and think of what
you could do to help boom the town
if you were so inclined.

tentiary.

HELPS FOR THE
BUSY HOUSEWIFE

New Mop That Connects
With Sink Spigots.

Now comes the fountain mop, designed by a New York woman. A mop
of the short handled variety, such as
is used in washing dishes, has the lower part of the handle hollow. A
rubber hose leads into this tubular
body, and the other end of the hose is
forced, having arms for both the hot
and cold water spigots of the sink or washstand. When the hose is affixed
a continuous stream of water—either
hot alone or the cold alone, or
both together, at any temperature desired—flows down into the mop and
keeps it always wet enough to wash
with and always supplied with fresh
clean water. This mop is an important feature, for in using a mop in a dish-
pan full of water the mop becomes
greasy after it has been swabbed
around in one or two soiled dishes
and does not clean the following dishes
so well.

To Broil in Gas Range.

Broiling steak or chops in the oven
of a gas range is not the simple operation one could wish it to be. The
flames, of course, are above the meat
and the dripping pan below, an arrangement which would seem eminently safe and proper. But what happens in actual practice is this: The
juices and grease run down into the
pan; the fat sputters in pyrotechnic
fashion up into the flame, catches fire,
falls in blazing drops on to the meat
and into the accumulated grease below
it, whereupon—poof!—there is a small
but energetic conflagration within the
oven which, when the door is opened,
bursts out into the room and seizes on
whatever comes handiest—mistress,
maid or furniture.

One housekeeper, who was twice
obliged to entertain representatives of
the fire department as the result of
her attempt to have broiled steak or
chops for breakfast, reluctantly but
firmly banished those items from her
menu. But the lingering desire for
them was not so easily got rid of.
And she brooded and brooded over the
problem until she arrived at an ingenious solution.

Before she placed the broiler into the
oven she put water in the drip pan,
covering the bottom to the depth of
about half an inch. When the fiery
rain of grease descended, therefore, it
was promptly quenched. The result is that this particular household enjoys
broiled steaks and chops as often as
the family purse will permit, and no
pressing invitations to the fire department are necessary. Try it for yourself.

Make Your Summer Bed Comforts.

The woman who makes her own bed
comforts has something superior in
workmanship and material at much
less cost. Pretty comforts may be made
of fine white lawn, even the cheapest
being suitable. Select something with a small flower. The ragged robin design, wild roses or purple clematis
makes a neat cover. The edges can be bound with cottonless ribbon or cotton
insertion of a Persian or Balkan design. A neat comfort may be made
of checked blue and white sateen in
large pattern. The blue checks should
be knotted with blue.

A lovely comfort may be made with
white dotted swiss, and instead of being knotted a daisy design may be
worked over the cover about every twelve inches apart. The designs are small, but neat and attractive.

To Keep Lettuce Fresh.

To keep lettuce fresh from one day
to the other wet thoroughly and roll
up in paper, tucking the ends in firmly to exclude the air. A paper bag,
the neck tied tightly with a string,
will do. Celery may be kept crisp
a long time in the same way. Cabbages keep well in bags hung up.

Moths in the Carpet.

When moths get into the carpet it
is a very good remedy to spread a damp
towel over the part and iron it dry on
the wrong side with a hot iron. The heat and steam from the iron will destroy the worms and eggs. This process will not hurt the carpet in any way.

A Handy Pinoushion.

A good substitute for a cushion for
pins and needles to be used when sewing on the machine is quickly made by
wrapping a piece of dannel or any soft
material several inches in width
around the crossbar of the machine
head and pinning or sewing it together.

Bone Knife Handles.

To clean the bone handles of knives
or any bone article it is a good plan to use salt and lemon juice. First rub
the article well with the lemon juice,
then with the salt. This will remove
all kinds of stains and grease spots.

To Restore Luster to Buttons.

A successful way to restore pearl
buttons to their original brightness is
first to rub them with a little olive oil,
which takes away the blurred look.
Then sprinkle with nail powder and
rub well with chamols skin.

Homemade Dress Shields.

To make dress shields for thin white
summer waists cut thin white flanne-
the size desired, trim the edge with
narrow lace and tie in the dress with narrow tape. They will keep the waists
dry.

Out in the sunny garden,
Where loveliest flowers grow,
Two little maidens are playing,
With bright eyes and cheeks all aglow.

Two little light footed maidens
Dancing about through the grass.
Birds in the tree tops are calling,
Butterflies pause as they pass.

Each flower that nods there so gayly,
Haunt of the grumbling bee,
Seems to be coaxingly calling,
"Little maid, please gather me"

BIG SISTER'S WARNING.

Big sister comes to the rescue,
Warningly raises her hand.
"We mustn't touch the nice flowers,
You know it is mother's command."

Mischiefous fingers are pausing
When, laden with sweets for his power,
A bee, big and fat and ill tempered,
Crawls out of the heart of the flower.

Charm of the Nutmeg Tree.

The nutmeg tree has all seasons for
its own. Every day in the year it
shows buds, blossoms and fruit in every stage of maturing. The shell of
the nutmeg is like a bit of polished

it bursts is of a bright scarlet. With
all these varied features upon it at the

Why Hollow Trees Live.
In forests and private parks one may often witness the remarkable sight of a very old tree with a trunk consisting of nothing but a hollow shell and yet bearing branches that are covered with foliage. It would seem to be impossible that the dry bark, in some cases only held together by an iron band, could go on producing leaves year after year in the manner in which it does. The explanation, however, is quite a simple one. In very young trees the sap carrying portion is in the center. It is a series of bundles of minute cellular tubes, scientifically known as "vascular bundles." As the tree gets older this series of bundles forms a ring which gets bigger and bigger as the circumference of the tree increases. In course of time the center withers and decays since it is no longer needed to supply the branches with nourishment.—London Graphic

Heating a Brook.

How to keep a brook running freely and water power working smoothly in a temperature of 50 degrees below zero has now been demonstrated on the Yukon, in Alaska, by some ingenious American engineers. A mining company that used water power to develop electric power, obtaining the water through a ditch many miles long, decided to try to operate through the winter. At the beginning of the winter the engineers let the water in the ditch freeze an ice coat a few inches thick. Then the water in the ditch was dropped a foot, so that the cover of ice made a protection for the stream, with an air space between the ice and the water. This kept out much of the cold, but was useless without some heating of the water. Accordingly wires were strung along the ditch, and at regular intervals electric heating coils were placed in the bottom of the ditch. By this means the water was heated by electricity manufactured by the water at the water wheels.—Saturday Evening Post.

Looking Ahead.

A handsome young woman entered the office of a prominent lawyer. Immediately the legal one rose to greet her.

"I am glad to tell you, Miss Smith," he pleasantly remarked, "that your breach of promise suit has been settled. The defendant has expressed a desire to compromise the case by marrying you."

"I am very glad to hear that," was the smiling response of Miss Smith. "It is much better than taking a chance on losing the verdict. You have managed the case very well. How much do I owe you?"

"Let me see," thoughtfully mused the lawyer. "Shall we say $100?"

"We shall not," was the emphatic rejoinder of the fair plaintiff. "It is entirely too much."

"Well, then, I will tell you what I will do, Miss Smith," responded the lawyer. "I will just cut that bill in half if you will promise to retain me as your counsel when you sue for a divorce."—Philadelphia Ledger.

AMUSEMENTS

A capacity house greeted "Bought and Paid For" at New Opera house Monday evening. The much advertised attraction was fully up to its advance notices, and the appreciative audience was well pleased with the play and its company.

"Bought and Paid For" teaches a powerful lesson. Robert Stafford, a fascinating financial king, proposes to Virginia Blaine, a poor but refined girl who earns $10 per week as telephone operator in a big hotel. She tells Stafford that she does not love him, but he tells her that in time he will win her affection. A year or so after their marriage Stafford comes home in a drunken condition, and repeatedly tells his wife that she was bought and paid for and therefore fore belonged to him.

To keep her self respect, the young wife leaves the luxuries she has been accustomed to, and works in a store at $5 a week. After months of waiting in which neither party unbends, a third person brings them together, and there is a happy reconciliation. A special train from Onondaga and points beyond brought scores of out of town persons here to witness the attraction.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The next sale opened this morning for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" which will appear at the New Opera house tomorrow night. In presenting this company to the public, Kibbe and Martin, owners have opened no pains to make it the most gigantic and elaborate production ever seen in this popular place. Popular prices will prevail.

Milady's Mirror

Disguising Facial Defects.

Many a girl whose beauty is marred by a slight facial defect gives herself up to despair or to the firm conviction that nothing will help or relieve her affliction. She generally proceeds to render herself less attractive by worrying or fretting and marring her expression.

If the cheek bones are too high, do not strain the hair back from the face and accentuate this defect. Wear a broad collar with the hair fluffed out near the ears. The hat should always give the effect of a background and frame combined, and the softly waved hair will detract attention from the high cheek bones. Cheek bones that are set high in the face give an unpleasant impression. They make a woman look less gentle and less feminine and youthful.

There is no reason why the eyes should not be the feature to attract attention, and even if they are not large or deep the eyebrows and eyelashes can be made to enhance their charm. One cannot change the color or the conformation, but the surrounding tissue, which makes much more difference to the looks than is generally believed, can be modified by the individual, greatly to the benefit of the eyes themselves and to their appearance. Many occupations carry with them the handicap of eye strain. In all work requiring the use of the eyes, whether with extra exertion or not, care should always be taken to protect the eyes themselves from glare and so to arrange that the bright light shall fall directly upon the work without shadows. To prevent and relieve an inflammatory condition of the eyelids it is necessary to use some mild astringent. The most generally useful eye wash, which should be always on the wash stand, is made of ten grains of boric acid to an ounce of camphor water—not spirits of camphor. Salt and water give a good eye wash for the cup and can be used several times a day. An excellent ointment to be used upon the eyelashes is the following:

Red vaseline..... 2 ounces
Tincture of camphor..... 1/4 ounce
Oil of lavender..... 15 drops
Oil of rosemary..... 15 drops
Mix thoroughly and apply to the lashes with a tiny toothbrush. Be careful not to get this into the eyes, as the oils will inflame them.

Where the Feet Perspire Profusely.
This is a very great cause of corns and general pains in the feet, and the cure is so simple that it is neglected. Frequent bathing in cold water, with gentle massage, will do more toward helping this trouble than almost anything, yet few but all their perspiring feet with some sort of powder, which clogs the pores and in the end makes matters worse. A good formula is to mix one ounce powdered alum with two of salt and one of borax. Put half a tablespoonful of this in a foot tub of tepid water at night and bathe the feet well. Keep a little jar of mignon tallow that has been melted and a teaspoonful of witch hazel added to an ounce. When the feet have been thoroughly soaked in the bath wipe and rub in this pomade; then bind them with antiseptic gauze, because the grease will spoil the bedclothing. Do this night and morning and there will be great relief, the gauze preventing the hose getting greasy during the day.

Another way is to bathe with salicylic soap every night. Dry well and wipe with a lotion made of an ounce of glycerin with three of perchloride of iron and add ten drops essence bergamot. Be sure that every part is touched, between the toes especially. Then powder with a mixture of twenty-five grams of violet talcum, 7 1/2 grams powdered starch, 2 1/2 burnt alum and a gram of powdered salicylic acid. Change the hose every day, wearing the thin cotton that can be rubbed out after being worn once. Have two or three pairs of shoes and change every day. It is the old, partly dried perspiration remaining in hose and shoes that hurts the feet, causes them to swell and perspire worse.

How to Massage.

The first point to bear in mind is the proper movements. These are light friction, delicate kneading, tapping and finally the rotary movement.

To massage the neck the fingers should be placed at the back of the neck and the thumbs in front; then the thumbs should work gently up and down the veins in front.

For facial massage the first movement consists of light upward strokes to stimulate the circulation. The work should start at chin and proceed to the temples. The gentle friction should be produced all over the face, and the touch should be firm. Care should be taken not to crease the skin at the corner of the eyes, as this is apt to cause tiny wrinkles; also be careful not to pull the flesh.

Knead gently to relieve the sagging of the muscle, which runs from the mouth to the eyes, and it will be found a vibrating movement of the arm will help to stimulate circulation when the fingers are pressed into the skin. Finish with a rotary motion around the eyes and temples, using the middle fingers with a gentle vibrating motion. In twenty minutes or half an hour cold compresses and an astringent lotion should be applied to tighten flabbiness and erase the wrinkles.

Pastor to Prison.

Bentonville, Ark., Sept. 22.—The Rev. W. E. Pippin, a Baptist minister, after pleading guilty here to passing a worthless check on a member of his congregation, was sentenced to three years in prison. The minister was arrested by his wife's brother, a constable, after a chase through a dozen states.

QUAINT CAKES.

Toothsome Dainties Suitable For Summer Entertaining.

USE FANCY BAKING TINS.

Cake Making Beginners Will Have Better Success if Batter is Cooked in Several Layers Instead of in One Large Square.

Little cakes for afternoon tea or for service with evening refreshments and for dessert can be made at home to rival those bought from the most expensive confectioner.

Small fancy tins come for the baking of little cakes, but it is very difficult for any one inexperienced in their use to grease them properly, with the result that the batter sticks and the shape is marred. Moreover, cake baked in such small quantity burns quickly.

The beginner will have better success if she bakes the batter in several layers in regular sized cake tins or in a square dripping pan or two and then cuts the layers into the desired shapes. To be sure, there is apparent waste in this method, but the results are much more satisfactory, and the addition of candied fruits and whipped cream to the odds and ends of cake gives a delicious dessert.

When the layers come from the oven take them from the pans and allow them to become cool. Then with fancy cutters, one shaped like a heart, one scalloped, one diamond shaped and others circular and oblong in outline, cut the cake layers in pieces.

The following recipe for cake batter can be followed with good results in little cakes: Cream half a cupful of butter with a cupful of sugar. Add the yolks of two eggs and beat. Gradually add half a cupful of milk and a cupful and three-quarters of flour sifted with two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Lastly add the beaten whites of the eggs.

When the batter is mixed divide it into four parts. To one part add chopped nut meats, to another a dash each of cinnamon, grated nutmeg and allspice, to another orange extract and half a teaspoonful of grated orange rind and to the fourth part half a teaspoonful of vanilla.

When the cakes are baked and cut and cool frost them. Prepare a stiff icing of the whites of raw eggs beaten stiff and confectioner's sugar. Beat the icing until it is creamy and smooth. Flavor it with a little vanilla and frost the nut cakes and the spice cakes. In the center of each nut cake place a nut meat or a candied cherry. Place small strips of citron on the spice cakes, in designs if desired. To some of the white frosting add a beaten egg yolk and a drop or two of orange extract, with a little more sugar, and with this frost the orange cakes. A little candied orange peel can be used to decorate these cakes. Melt grated chocolate with confectioner's sugar, beat it carefully into the remaining white frosting and ice the plain cakes.

Summer Cozy Corner.

The porch where the breezes blow and cool summer beverages circulate appeals more to the average person

DONE IN BAMBOO.

than the cozy corner which one associates with an open fireplace on wintry days, but here is a corner of bamboo that is delightfully comfortable for a bungalow living room.

Sardine Croquettes.

Sardine croquettes are an appetizing delicacy. To make them mash two dozen skinned sardines drained from the oil. Add to them four eggs, salt and pepper and plenty of paprika. Then add cracker crumbs, finely rolled, until the paste is thick enough to form into little balls. Fry them golden brown in butter and serve with tomato sauce well seasoned.

New Fruit Dishes.

Some fruit dishes and compotes of German china have the appearance of the old Dresden and a little of the white porcelain idea blended. They have the design with figures of boys in full relief. Both dishes and boys are of the all white glazed china, and the garlands are solid rose pink, with the tiny flowers in full relief also.

Never Settled Questions.

The familiar saying that nothing is settled until it is settled right expresses only a half truth. Questions of general and permanent importance are seldom finally settled. A very wise man has said that "short of the multiplication table there is no truth and no fact which must not be proved over again if it had never been proved, from time to time." Conceptions of social rights and obligations and the institutions based upon them continue unquestioned for long periods as postulates in all discussions upon questions of government. Whatever conduct conforms to them is assumed to be right. Whatever is at variance with them is assumed to be wrong. Then a time comes when with apparent suddenness the ground of discussion shifts and the postulates are denied. They cease to be accepted without proof, and the whole controversy in which they were originally established is fought over again.—Senator Root in North American Review.

A Laureate on Lytton.

When Bulwer Lytton attacked Tennyson for accepting a civil list pension, Tennyson retaliated with a ten stanza poem in Punch, which has not been included in any collected edition of his works. He described his antagonist as:

That padded man—that wears the stays—
Who killed the girls and thrilled the boys
With dandy pathos when you wrote.

What profits now to understand
The merits of a spotless shirt,
A dapper boot, a little hand,
If half the little soul is dirt?

Tennyson felt ashamed of this outburst when he saw it in print. Punch of the following week contained his "After Thought," which ends:

Surely, after all,
The noblest answer unto such
Is kindly silence when they brawl.
—London Chronicle.

HAVE NO LEADER IN SIGHT

Republican Leaders Admit They May Have to Accept Progressivism—Say Feeling of Pessimism Grows Stronger as the Weeks Pass—A Sur Editorial.

New York, Sept. 23. Tory Republicans who helped to steal the presidential nomination from Theodore Roosevelt at Chicago last year are awakening to the desperate situation of their party.

Leaders who so far failed to gauge public sentiment as to expect Taft to go to a larger vote than Roosevelt realize that the party is without a leader who can command public confidence. Diligent searching of the ranks has failed to turn up a man who has the slightest chance to win the 1916 election.

In this strait many of the men who condoned a political theft are ready to repent, and are urging that the Republican nomination for president be thrust upon Theodore Roosevelt, even if it be necessary to accept Progressive policies.

New York Sun Speaks.

The New York Sun, a tory newspaper which rejoiced, last year, in the stolen nomination, today printed an article designed to show the strength of the repentance within the Republican party.

The Sun article, under a Washington date, is in part:

"The movement among Republicans to turn to Colonel Roosevelt as the leader in 1916 is growing with remarkable rapidity.

"The statement made yesterday in Salt Lake City by United States Senator George Sutherland, of Utah, predicting the nomination of Roosevelt three years hence on the Republican ticket, has added greatly to the interest with which Washington has been watching the turning of the political wheel. Coming from a senator who did not support Roosevelt last year and who always has been classed as a strong conservative, the interview caused much comment.

Says it is inevitable.

"Senator Sutherland, however, has only voiced publicly what many prominent Republican leaders have been saying beneath their breath for some time.

"Several weeks ago the Sun told of growing feeling in Washington that Roosevelt's nomination on the Republican ticket is inevitable, but since then the opinion among political leaders has become stronger. Many are convinced that they will again be obliged to support the colonel as the Republican standard bearer.

Bitterness Grows Less.

"The general feeling of tolerance toward this suggestion was shown of late in the guarded comment caused by Senator Sutherland's statement. The bitterness engendered in last year's campaign over Roosevelt's bolting of the ticket has been steadily growing less, and many Republicans have been seeking grounds of compromise on which they could go before the country with a chance of success.

"It is known that Senator Borah has long been of the opinion that Roosevelt is fast becoming the most available man to reunite the Republican party for victory in 1916. In conversation with his colleagues he has said there is no other course open to the Republicans by which to win."

MARRIAGE LICENSES

DIVORCES GRANTED

Matters Disposed of Before Judge Smith in Argument Court.

Before Judge Smith, sitting in argument court yesterday, divorces were granted to Charles L. Peters from his wife, Elsie M. Peters and to Francis Leuwer against her husband, Dominicus Leuwer.

A libel in divorce was filed in the case of Josie Stull against her husband, Casner Stull.

William Melsey was before the court on the charge of desertion and non-support. He was placed under $100 bail to provide for his family and was ordered to pay the costs in the case in three months.

Melsey deserted his wife and children and left the county. The county commissioners discovered that he had gone to Olean, New York, and they sent an officer to that place a couple of weeks ago, and Melsey was brought here. He has found employment in this place.

SHOOK THE TOWN

A Number of Mysterious Explosions in This Vicinity.

A series of heavy detonations startled the people of this town last evening. Diligent inquiry today failed to disclose the cause of the explosions, but it is supposed the noise was caused by blasting in the direction of Rockton.

The explosions were heavy enough to shake houses in town.

FELL FROM WAGON AND SERIOUSLY HURT

Archie Shaw Seized With Vertigo While Delivering Coal

Archie Shaw, of the West Side, met with what might easily have been a fatal accident this morning.

At about 11:30 Mr. Shaw was delivering coal at the brick works in the East End, and while standing up in the wagon he was seized with vertigo, falling to the brick pavement. He alighted on his head and shoulders.

A physician was hastily summoned and discovered that Mr. Shaw had broken his right wrist and was suffering from shock, his lower limbs being affected. He was removed to his home, where he lies in a serious condition, but it is believed that he will recover.

THE STERN STORE

New Firm Preparing to Open The Store on Second Street.

The work of remodeling the store room in the bank building on Second street has been completed and Stern is now stocking the store with goods. This firm will carry a large assortment of exclusive men's furnishings and hats, and hope to secure a part of the patronage of the men of discriminating tastes in these goods. An effort will be made to carry the most desirable things in men's wear not usually found in stores in towns the size of Clearfield.

A tailoring department will be conducted in connection with the ready made articles to be had in the store, and orders for anything in the gentleman's furnishing line that is not carried in stock will be gladly ordered by the Messrs. Stern.

L. D. Stern, who will have full charge of the store, is a young and progressive merchant, who has been in business for some years in Lewistown. He is a man who is ready to take part in movements having the benefit of the town in view, is an ardent baseball fan and is also a firm believer in boosting the town in which he does business. He organized a board of trade and a merchants' association in Lewistown and in other ways has proven himself a most desirable citizen.

The people of Clearfield welcome most heartily to their town as energetic and as substantial a citizen as Mr. Stern, and they will no doubt give his store that patronage which it will merit.

The Stern store will be open for business on Saturday, September 27.

Both are well known young people the bride having resided at Munson. They have a host of friends who wish them a long and happy married life.

Compulsory Illuminations.

The west end of London is always ablaze with lights on the evening of the king's birthday, but no living Londoner can claim to have seen a general illumination of the metropolis. In his "Recollection and Reflection" J. R. Planché writes: "The last general illumination of London was that celebrating the battle of Waterloo. Now there are more beautiful displays, but this one was really general. Not a window in the smallest court but had its candle stuck in a lump of clay, while in houses of more pretension one blazed in every pane. Mobs paraded the metropolis from Hyde park corner to Whitechapel with cries of 'Light up' and smashed every window that did not swiftly display a dip in answer to the summons."

Penalties of Genius.

Genius and ill health, it would seem, often go hand in hand. At any rate, many of the greatest deeds that the world has seen performed have been accomplished by men physically infirm.

Darwin suffered so acutely from nervous exhaustion that he could only work for two hours a day at the most. Thackeray was frequently ill, Johnson nearly always in poor health, Dickens at the age of fifty-five was an old man, with shattered nerves, while Sir Walter Scott, a subject of spasms, was a chronic invalid during the later years of his life and died at the age of fifty-nine.

Milton, William Morris and Charles Keane, the actor, all were slaves to gout, and Milton was further handicapped by being blind. The poet Keats died of consumption when still quite young. Elizabeth Barrett Browning was an invalid for the greater part of her life.

Insanity claimed Dean Swift, while Rousseau and Cowper were insane during periods of their lives.

Light of the Fireflies.

It has been proved by experiments conducted by M. Ives, a chemist, that the light emitted by fireflies glows, worms and other insects is purely chemical and not in any way biological. M. Ives finds that this light is not extinguished by death. Of course after death some stimulus is necessary to excite it, but it can be produced in their tissues two years after death, which makes certain that it is chemical in origin.—New York World.

SLAY AMERICAN MINE ENGINEER

Bandits in Mexico Murder Morris P. Root.

REFUGEES GIVE DETAILS.

Say Entire West Coast of Mexico is in State of Anarchy—Bands of Peons, Debauched With Liquor, Commit Numerous Crimes—Fate of Americans Undetermined.

San Francisco, Sept. 23. About 100 of the passengers who have just arrived here on the steamer Peru were refugees from points along the western coast of Mexico. Western Mexico is in a state of anarchy, they said. Rebel chiefs do not recognize one another, and in the interims between looting and murdering they fight among themselves.

Refugees from the state of Durango say that conditions there are terrible. The country is overrun with roving bands of peons debauched with liquor, who commit many crimes.

The refugees brought word of the murder of Morris P. Root, an American mining engineer, by a band of revolutionists. Root was the superintendent of the El Tigre mines at Tepic. While on his way to join employees of the company preparing to defend the mine property against attacks of guerrillas he was seized by a dozen bandits, disarmed and cut to pieces.

Root had been in Mexico for sixteen years. He was fifty years old.

Max Lambert, another American engineer, who came in on the Peru, had a narrow escape from bandits in the state of Tepic while defending his wife and child from an attack.

Americans in Rebels' Hands.

Mexico City, Sept. 18.—On the quick advance of General Trucey Aubert, the federal commander, who, with 1,000 men, was reported marching north to the relief of Torreon, may depend the safety of 100 Americans, including women and children, who were reported to have fallen into the hands of the rebels. The Americans are refugees who were proceeding overland to Saltillo from Torreon. They are in charge of Deputy Consul General J. C. Allen of Monterey.

Following President Wilson's warning to Americans to leave Mexico, Mr. Allen went to Torreon to warn the Americans there. The party of 100 gathered together under Mr. Allen's leadership started in the most available conveyances for Saltillo. There had been no railroad connection for months, and many of the party were obliged to walk. The Americans left Torreon on Sept. 1.

KILLS WIFE; SHOTS SELF

Accused Woman of Meeting Her Divorced Husband.

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—Harry Shappell, forty-seven years old, shot and killed his wife and then shot himself. He is dying in a hospital. Shappell charged his wife with meeting clandestinely her divorced husband.

The slayer's son, Thomas, fourteen years old, was in the house when the shooting occurred.

SWITCHING CHARGE

TO BE INVESTIGATED

Rate for Hauling Coal From Clearfield Region Attacked

The Pennsylvania State Public Service Commission Friday will hear several complaints about switching charges in various cities in addition to holding the final hearing on the objections to the proposed schedule of telephone rates drafted by the commission for the whole state. These rates are complained of because they would wipe out all flat rates and put everything on a service basis.

The hearing on switching charges includes, W. H. Cox & Co., Pittsburgh, against the Pennsylvania Railroad, for Tuesday, the Crucible Steel company of America against the Pennsylvania demurrage and switching, to Wednesday; American Plate Glass Co. B. Idgway, against Kane & Elk Railroad, alleged discrimination and demurrage for Thursday; and the complaint of the Manufacturers' association, of York and Lancaster counties, against the Pennsylvania railroad, alleging that the rate of hauling coal from the Clearfield region to York and Lancaster manufacturing plants is excessive and discriminatory.

Modern Witches.

Centuries have passed since "witches" were executed in England, but in very recent times they have suffered physical harm. Dr. Janssen knew a Norfolk man who died in 1888, and in the straits had joined with his two brothers in a slight expedition to the house of an old woman. They took her out of bed, and in the presence of half a dozen other people threw her into a pond, "where she would infallibly have been drowned, but that some who were not so mad as the rest cried out that she was sinking to the bottom and must be saved." The conclusive evidence against her was that she kept a black cat and wore a black silk dress on Sundays. In 1888 there was still alive, and master in an elementary school, one who, as a young man, had scratched a "witch" until the blood poured down, because she had "overlooked" him, and only so could his health be restored.—London Chronicle.

The Secret of Beauty.

There is a beauty secret not found in cosmetics and which does not linger in the perfume laden hangings of the parlor of the matron. It is a secret which any woman can possess, and the magic effect is almost instantly noted. The secret is merely a combination of repose and relaxation. A woman always appears to advantage. There is culture in a repose of manner that makes itself felt both at home and in public. This pose is itself in personal beauty. There is a suggestion of reserve intellectual strength more impressive than the unconscious of the woman who feels that her tongue or her body must be in motion to let the world know she is in it. At the same time the wear and tear will leave the marks of strain on complexion and figure which no cream or lotion can remove. To grow old gracefully and beautifully learn to take things easy. Repose is more beautiful than rouse and relaxation more body building than massage.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Fine For Mamma.

Little Sarah was watching her mother, who was ironing some linen. "Is it hard work to iron, mamma?" she asked.

"Pretty hard sometimes," the mother replied.

The little girl was thoughtful a moment; then she exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, wouldn't it be fine if you had married a Chinese laundryman?"—Youngstown Telegram.

History Made by a Postage Stamp.

A postage stamp which played a part in history is told about by M. Bannan Varille in his book on the Panama canal. The incident occurred when the discussion over the relative merits of the Panama and Nicaragua routes was at its height. Bannan-Varille had been working vigorously for the Panama route, making use of the two arguments of less cost and immunity from active volcanoes. One day he recalled that Nicaragua had issued a handsome stamp, showing a volcano in full activity. He at once sent to the dealers in foreign stamps in Washington, and obtained ninety of these stamps, which he forwarded to the ninety senators, along with his paper bearing the words: "Postage stamp of the republic of Nicaragua, an official witness of the volcanic activities of Nicaragua." The catastrophe at St. Pierre took place about this time, to deepen the impression of volcanic danger, and the Panama route was adopted by the narrow margin of four votes.—New York Post.

COMBINATION

Publishers, Advertisers and Manufacturers Unite

By HOLLAND.

IN union there is strength. Did you ever write this in your copybook? Well, it is true, anyway.

One of the effective combinations of the business world is composed of publishers, advertisers and manufacturers. They are united in the effort to see that the public gets value received. Their interests are identical.

No one of the trio can make money without the others share it. And they cannot make money for themselves without making money for the public. The interests of all are interwoven so closely as to be practically identical.

You should join this combination and enjoy the benefits to be derived from it. Take full advantage of the advertising columns and be sure of getting a dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

ADVERTISEMENTS WILL KEEP YOU FULLY INFORMED.

They will tell you where to buy, when to buy, what to buy. It is true economy to read the advertisements, for they will insure your getting the greatest value when you spend your money.

Anti-Saloon League convention

DuBois fair, Sept. 30, Oct. 1, 2, 3.

Good evening! Have you taken that

CHEAP TRANSFER NEEDED.

Strangers visiting Clearfield have
been surprised that, with a population of about nine thousand people,
there is no means whereby citizens
might travel from one part of the
town to the other at a low rate of
fare. Some years ago there was established a motor cab service in Clear-
field, which for a time proved a
great convenience to the citizens, but
which was discontinued after cars
of the company had been destroyed
by fire. Since that disaster no effort has been made to give the people convenient transit.

With the opening of the rolling mill
the works and mill there will be
a demand for transfer service which
will accommodate hundreds of employees who will find work in these
industries and who must find homes
in various parts of the town. Unless
some sort of cab service at reason-
able rates of fare, shall be established these people will have to walk long
distances to and from their work.
Can any capitalist doubt that a cab
service which would include in its
schedule the distant manufactories
would pay?

Aside from the fact that there is
need of a transfer service for mill
employees, the citizens who live in
sections of Clearfield a considerable
distance from the business section
would patronize a transfer service
which would enable them to reach the
central part of town in a few minutes
at a fair cost per ride. Will this
enterprise, so full of possibilities
for the investor, wait for outside capital to inaugurate it?

THE WASHINGTON PARTY.

The Washington party made no
discouraging showing at the recent
primaries. The fact that a judicious
fight overshadowed all other contests
prevented the party showing its full
strength. Had the primaries been
for the sole purpose of nominating
county candidates there is not the
least doubt that the Washing-
ton party would have been credited
with a much larger number of votes
than appear on the returns.

Regardless of what its opponents
may say, the Washington party still
lives, and the members of the party
are just as determined to stand by
their colors as they were when Colonel Roosevelt led the ticket last
year. The voter who pledged his support to the cause of reform in 1912
is just as ready to give his vote to
the party next fall or in the coming
years. Defeat under the circumstances is not discouragement, but merely

spurs the Washington voters on to
renewed determination to add in the
fight against the forces of evil which
have control of the Republican and Democratic parties.

Nothing has happened since last
fall to prove that the people who
gave their support to the Washington
party are not sincere in their faith in
the ultimate triumph of honest political principles, in the inevitable over-
throw of the bosses and in the awak-
ening of the people to the fact that
they can look for redress from wrong
to neither the Republican nor the Democratic party. The members
of the Washington party in Clearfield
county are not dismayed; they are no
ready to surrender to the enemy, and
they are in this fight to win with
candidates who are deserving of the
support of every good citizen.

NOT INVITED.

The Pennsylvania Woman's Sur-
frage association states that neither
it as a body nor any of its branches has invited Elinore Pankhurst
the English militant suffragette, to visit
Pennsylvania. So far as is known
not a single American woman's sur-
frage organization has manifested a
desire to encourage militant methods of securing the ballot for American
women, and Mrs. Pankhurst is likely
to find a rather cool reception if she
visits Pennsylvania, especially after
the declaration of her emissary that
unless the English women secure the
ballot they will resort to bloodshed.

Mrs. Pankhurst and her kind are
the most potent agencies against gain-
ing of the ballot to the women of England that exist. Anarchistic acts
have turned hundreds of thousands of English women away from the cause,
and it is not at all likely that Ameri-
can women, who are gradually secur-
ing the suffrage by peaceful methods
will encourage this rampant, insane
woman from over the sea should she
attempt to carry out her program in
this country. It is to the credit of the Pennsylvania advocates of the
cause that they thus early serve notice upon Mrs. Pankhurst that lawless
ness is not part of the plan of
American women in their effort to secure the ballot.

If every Washington voter will re-
main true to the principles of the party
the county candidates of that party
will be elected this fall.

About this time of year look for
movings from the front porch to the
parlor.

Watch the signs of Clearfield's prosperity on all sides and think of what
you could do to help boom the town
if you were so inclined.

wife will not save him from the penitentiary.

HELPS FOR THE
BUSY HOUSEWIFE

New Mop That Connects
With Sink Spigots.

Now comes the fountain mop, de-
signed by a New York woman. A mop
of the short handled variety, such as
is used in washing dishes, has the
lower part of the handle hollow. A
rubber hose leads into this tubular
body, and the other end of the hose is
forced, having arms for both the hot
and cold water spigots of the sink or
washstand. When the hose is affixed
a continuous stream of water—either
hot alone or the cold alone, or
both together, at any temperature desired—flows down into the mop and
keeps it always wet enough to wash
with and always supplied with fresh
clean water. This last is an important feature, for in using a mop in a dish-
pan full of water the mop becomes
greasy after it has been swabbed
around in one or two soiled dishes
and does not clean the following dishes
so well.

To Broil in Gas Range.

Broiling steak or chops in the oven
of a gas range is not the simple operation one could wish it to be. The
flames, of course, are above the meat
and the dripping pan below, an arrangement which would seem eminently safe and proper. But what
happens in actual practice is this: The
juices and grease run down into the
pan; the fat sputters in pyrotechnic
fashion up into the flame, catches fire,
falls in blazing drops on to the meat
and into the accumulated grease below
it, whereupon—poof!—there is a small
but energetic conflagration within the
oven which, when the door is opened,
bursts out into the room and seizes on
whatever comes handiest—mistress,
maid or furniture.

One housekeeper, who was twice
obliged to entertain representatives of
the fire department as the result of
her attempt to have broiled steak or
chops for breakfast, reluctantly but
firmly banished those items from her
menu. But the lingering desire for
them was not so easily got rid of.
And she brooded and brooded over the
problem until she arrived at an ingenious solution.

Before she placed the broiler into the
oven she put water in the drip pan,
covering the bottom to the depth of
about half an inch. When the fiery
rain of grease descended, therefore, it
was promptly quenched. The result is
that this particular household enjoys
broiled steaks and chops as often as
the family purse will permit, and no
pressing invitations to the fire department are necessary. Try it for yourself.

Make Your Summer Bed Comforts.

The woman who makes her own bed
comforts has something superior in
workmanship and material at much
less cost. Pretty comforts may be made
of fine white lawn, even the cheapest
being suitable. Select something with a small flower. The ragged robin de-
sign, wild roses or purple clematis
makes a neat cover. The edges can be
bound with cottonless ribbon or cotton
insertion of a Persian or Balkan design. A neat comfort may be made
of checked blue and white sateen in
large pattern. The blue checks should
be knotted with blue.

A lovely comfort may be made with
white dotted swiss, and instead of being knotted a daisy design may be
worked over the cover about every
twelve inches apart. The designs are
small, but neat and attractive.

To Keep Lettuce Fresh.

To keep lettuce fresh from one day
to the other wet thoroughly and roll
up in paper, tucking the ends in firmly to exclude the air. A paper bag,
the neck tied tightly with a string,
will do. Celery may be kept crisp
a long time in the same way. Cabbages keep well in bags hung up.

Moths in the Carpet.

When moths get into the carpet it
is a very good remedy to spread a damp
towel over the part and iron it dry on
the wrong side with a hot iron. The
heat and steam from the iron will destroy the worms and eggs. This process will not hurt the carpet in any
way.

A Handy Pinoushion.

A good substitute for a cushion for
pins and needles to be used when sew-
ing on the machine is quickly made by
wrapping a piece of dannel or any soft
material several inches in width
around the crossbar of the machine
head and pinning or sewing it together.

Bone Knife Handles.

To clean the bone handles of knives
or any bone article it is a good plan to
use salt and lemon juice. First rub
the article well with the lemon juice,
then with the salt. This will remove
all kinds of stains and grease spots.

To Restore Luster to Buttons.

A successful way to restore pearl
buttons to their original brightness is
first to rub them with a little olive oil,
which takes away the blurred look.
Then sprinkle with nail powder and
rub well with chamols skin.

Homemade Dress Shields.

To make dress shields for thin white
summer waists cut thin white flanne-
the size desired, trim the edge with
narrow lace and tie in the dress with
narrow tape. They will keep the waists
dry.

Out in the sunny garden,
Where loveliest flowers grow,
Two little maidens are playing,
With bright eyes and cheeks all aglow.

Two little light footed maidens
Dancing about through the grass.
Birds in the tree tops are calling,
Butterflies pause as they pass.

Each flower that nods there so gayly,
Haunt of the grumbling bee,
Seems to be coaxingly calling,
"Little maid, please gather me"

BIG SISTER'S WARNING.

Big sister comes to the rescue,
Warningly raises her hand.
"We mustn't touch the nice flowers,
You know it is mother's command."

Mischiefous fingers are pausing
When, laden with sweets for his power,
A bee, big and fat and ill tempered,
Crawls out of the heart of the flower.

Charm of the Nutmeg Tree.

The nutmeg tree has all seasons for
its own. Every day in the year it
shows buds, blossoms and fruit in every stage of maturing. The shell of
the nutmeg is like a bit of polished
ebony, and the mace it exposes when
it bursts is of a bright scarlet. With
all these varied features upon it at the same time, the nutmeg tree is one of

Why Hollow Trees Live.
In forests and private parks one may often witness the remarkable sight of a very old tree with a trunk consisting of nothing but a hollow shell and yet bearing branches that are covered with foliage. It would seem to be impossible that the dry bark, in some cases only held together by an iron band, could go on producing leaves year after year in the manner in which it does. The explanation, however, is quite a simple one. In very young trees the sap carrying portion is in the center. It is a series of bundles of minute cellular tubes, scientifically known as "vascular bundles." As the tree gets older this series of bundles forms a ring which gets bigger and bigger as the circumference of the tree increases. In course of time the center withers and decays since it is no longer needed to supply the branches with nourishment.—London Graphic

Heating a Brook.

How to keep a brook running freely and water power working smoothly in a temperature of 50 degrees below zero has now been demonstrated on the Yukon, in Alaska, by some ingenious American engineers. A mining company that used water power to develop electric power, obtaining the water through a ditch many miles long, decided to try to operate through the winter. At the beginning of the winter the engineers let the water in the ditch freeze an ice coat a few inches thick. Then the water in the ditch was dropped a foot, so that the cover of ice made a protection for the stream, with an air space between the ice and the water. This kept out much of the cold, but was useless without some heating of the water. Accordingly wires were strung along the ditch, and at regular intervals electric heating coils were placed in the bottom of the ditch. By this means the water was heated by electricity manufactured by the water at the water wheels.—Saturday Evening Post.

Looking Ahead.

A handsome young woman entered the office of a prominent lawyer. Immediately the legal one rose to greet her.

"I am glad to tell you, Miss Smith," he pleasantly remarked, "that your breach of promise suit has been settled. The defendant has expressed a desire to compromise the case by marrying you."

"I am very glad to hear that," was the smiling response of Miss Smith. "It is much better than taking a chance on losing the verdict. You have managed the case very well. How much do I owe you?"

"Let me see," thoughtfully mused the lawyer. "Shall we say $100?"

"We shall not," was the emphatic rejoinder of the fair plaintiff. "It is entirely too much."

"Well, then, I will tell you what I will do, Miss Smith," responded the lawyer. "I will just cut that bill in half if you will promise to retain me as your counsel when you sue for a divorce."—Philadelphia Ledger.

AMUSEMENTS

A capacity house greeted "Bought and Paid For" at New Opera house Monday evening. The much advertised attraction was fully up to its advance notices, and the appreciative audience was well pleased with the play and its company.

"Bought and Paid For" teaches a powerful lesson. Robert Stafford, a fascinating financial king, proposes to Virginia Blaine, a poor but refined girl who earns $10 per week as telephone operator in a big hotel. She tells Stafford that she does not love him, but he tells her that in time he will win her affection. A year or so after their marriage Stafford comes home in a drunken condition, and repeatedly tells his wife that she was bought and paid for and therefore fore belonged to him.

To keep her self respect, the young wife leaves the luxuries she has been accustomed to, and works in a store at $5 a week. After months of waiting in which neither party unbends, a third person brings them together, and there is a happy reconciliation. A special train from Onondaga and points beyond brought scores of out of town persons here to witness the attraction.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The next sale opened this morning for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" which will appear at the New Opera house tomorrow night. In presenting this company to the public, Kibbe and Martin, owners have opened no pains to make it the most gigantic and elaborate production ever seen in this popular place. Popular prices will prevail.

Milady's Mirror

Disguising Facial Defects.

Many a girl whose beauty is marred by a slight facial defect gives herself up to despair or to the firm conviction that nothing will help or relieve her affliction. She generally proceeds to render herself less attractive by worrying or fretting and marring her expression.

If the cheek bones are too high, do not strain the hair back from the face and accentuate this defect. Wear a broad collar with the hair fluffed out near the ears. The hat should always give the effect of a background and frame combined, and the softly waved hair will detract attention from the high cheek bones. Cheek bones that are set high in the face give an unpleasant impression. They make a woman look less gentle and less feminine and youthful.

There is no reason why the eyes should not be the feature to attract attention, and even if they are not large or deep the eyebrows and eyelashes can be made to enhance their charm. One cannot change the color or the conformation, but the surrounding tissue, which makes much more difference to the looks than is generally believed, can be modified by the individual, greatly to the benefit of the eyes themselves and to their appearance. Many occupations carry with them the handicap of eye strain. In all work requiring the use of the eyes, whether with extra exertion or not, care should always be taken to protect the eyes themselves from glare and so to arrange that the bright light shall fall directly upon the work without shadows. To prevent and relieve an inflammatory condition of the eyelids it is necessary to use some mild astringent. The most generally useful eye wash, which should be always on the wash stand, is made of ten grains of boric acid to an ounce of camphor water—not spirits of camphor. Salt and water give a good eye wash for the cup and can be used several times a day. An excellent ointment to be used upon the eyelashes is the following:

Red vaseline..... 2 ounces
Tincture of camphor..... 1/4 ounce
Oil of lavender..... 15 drops
Oil of rosemary..... 15 drops
Mix thoroughly and apply to the lashes with a tiny toothbrush. Be careful not to get this into the eyes, as the oils will inflame them.

Where the Feet Perspire Profusely.

This is a very great cause of corns and general pains in the feet, and the cure is so simple that it is neglected. Frequent bathing in cold water, with gentle massage, will do more toward helping this trouble than almost anything, yet few but all their perspiring feet with some sort of powder, which clogs the pores and in the end makes matters worse. A good formula is to mix one ounce powdered alum with two of salt and one of borax. Put half a tablespoonful of this in a foot tub of tepid water at night and bathe the feet well. Keep a little jar of mignon talow that has been melted and a teaspoonful of witch hazel added to an ounce. When the feet have been thoroughly soaked in the bath wipe and rub in this pomade; then bind them with antiseptic gauze, because the grease will spoil the bedclothing. Do this night and morning and there will be great relief, the gauze preventing the hose getting greasy during the day.

Another way is to bathe with salicylic soap every night. Dry well and wipe with a lotion made of an ounce of glycerin with three of perchloride of iron and add ten drops essence bergamot. Be sure that every part is touched, between the toes especially. Then powder with a mixture of twenty-five grams of violet talcum, 7 1/2 grams powdered starch, 2 1/2 burnt alum and a gram of powdered salicylic acid. Change the hose every day, wearing the thin cotton that can be rubbed out after being worn once. Have two or three pairs of shoes and change every day. It is the old, partly dried perspiration remaining in hose and shoes that hurts the feet, causes them to swell and perspire worse.

How to Massage.

The first point to bear in mind is the proper movements. These are light friction, delicate kneading, tapping and finally the rotary movement.

To massage the neck the fingers should be placed at the back of the neck and the thumbs in front; then the thumbs should work gently up and down the veins in front.

For facial massage the first movement consists of light upward strokes to stimulate the circulation. The work should start at chin and proceed to the temples. The gentle friction should be produced all over the face, and the touch should be firm. Care should be taken not to crease the skin at the corner of the eyes, as this is apt to cause tiny wrinkles; also be careful not to pull the flesh.

Knead gently to relieve the sagging of the muscle, which runs from the mouth to the eyes, and it will be found a vibrating movement of the arm will help to stimulate circulation when the fingers are pressed into the skin. Finish with a rotary motion around the eyes and temples, using the middle fingers with a gentle vibrating motion. In twenty minutes or half an hour cold compresses and an astringent lotion should be applied to tighten flabbiness and erase the wrinkles.

Pastor to Prison.

Bentonville, Ark., Sept. 22.—The Rev. W. E. Pippin, a Baptist minister, after pleading guilty here to passing a worthless check on a member of his congregation, was sentenced to three years in prison. The minister was arrested by his wife's brother, a constable, after a chase through a dozen states.

QUAINT CAKES.

Toothsome Dainties Suitable For Summer Entertaining.

USE FANCY BAKING TINS.

Cake Making Beginners Will Have Better Success if Batter is Cooked in Several Layers Instead of in One Large Square.

Little cakes for afternoon tea or for service with evening refreshments and for dessert can be made at home to rival those bought from the most expensive confectioner.

Small fancy tins come for the baking of little cakes, but it is very difficult for any one inexperienced in their use to grease them properly, with the result that the batter sticks and the shape is marred. Moreover, cake baked in such small quantity burns quickly.

The beginner will have better success if she bakes the batter in several layers in regular sized cake tins or in a square dripping pan or two and then cuts the layers into the desired shapes. To be sure, there is apparent waste in this method, but the results are much more satisfactory, and the addition of candied fruits and whipped cream to the odds and ends of cake gives a delicious dessert.

When the layers come from the oven take them from the pans and allow them to become cool. Then with fancy cutters, one shaped like a heart, one scalloped, one diamond shaped and others circular and oblong in outline, cut the cake layers in pieces.

The following recipe for cake batter can be followed with good results in little cakes: Cream half a cupful of butter with a cupful of sugar. Add the yolks of two eggs and beat. Gradually add half a cupful of milk and a cupful and three-quarters of flour sifted with two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Lastly add the beaten whites of the eggs.

When the batter is mixed divide it into four parts. To one part add chopped nut meats, to another a dash each of cinnamon, grated nutmeg and allspice, to another orange extract and half a teaspoonful of grated orange rind and to the fourth part half a teaspoonful of vanilla.

When the cakes are baked and cut and cool frost them. Prepare a stiff icing of the whites of raw eggs beaten stiff and confectioner's sugar. Beat the icing until it is creamy and smooth. Flavor it with a little vanilla and frost the nut cakes and the spice cakes. In the center of each nut cake place a nut meat or a candied cherry. Place small strips of citron on the spice cakes, in designs if desired. To some of the white frosting add a beaten egg yolk and a drop or two of orange extract, with a little more sugar, and with this frost the orange cakes. A little candied orange peel can be used to decorate these cakes. Melt grated chocolate with confectioner's sugar, beat it carefully into the remaining white frosting and ice the plain cakes.

Summery Cozy Corner.

The porch where the breezes blow and cool summer beverages circulate appeals more to the average person

DONE IN BAMBOO.

than the cozy corner which one associates with an open fireplace on wintry days, but here is a corner of bamboo that is delightfully comfortable for a bungalow living room.

Sardine Croquettes.

Sardine croquettes are an appetizing delicacy. To make them mash two dozen skinned sardines drained from the oil. Add to them four eggs, salt and pepper and plenty of paprika. Then add cracker crumbs, finely rolled, until the paste is thick enough to form into little balls. Fry them golden brown in butter and serve with tomato sauce well seasoned.

New Fruit Dishes.

Some fruit dishes and compotes of German china have the appearance of the old Dresden and a little of the white Comport idea blended. They have the design with figures of boys in full relief. Both dishes and boys are of the all white glazed china, and the garlands are solid rose pink, with the tiny flowers in full relief also.

Never Settled Questions.

The familiar saying that nothing is settled until it is settled right expresses only a half truth. Questions of general and permanent importance are seldom finally settled. A very wise man has said that "short of the multiplication table there is no truth and no fact which must not be proved over again if it had never been proved, from time to time." Conceptions of social rights and obligations and the institutions based upon them continue unquestioned for long periods as postulates in all discussions upon questions of government. Whatever conduct conforms to them is assumed to be right. Whatever is at variance with them is assumed to be wrong. Then a time comes when with apparent suddenness the ground of discussion shifts and the postulates are denied. They cease to be accepted without proof, and the whole controversy in which they were originally established is fought over again.—Senator Root in North American Review.

A Laureate on Lytton.

When Bulwer Lytton attacked Tennyson for accepting a civil list pension, Tennyson retaliated with a ten stanza poem in Punch, which has not been included in any collected edition of his works. He described his antagonist as:

That padded man—that wears the stays—
Who killed the girls and thrilled the boys
With dandy pathos when you wrote.

What profits now to understand
The merits of a spotless shirt,
A dapper boot, a little hand,
If half the little soul is dirt?

Tennyson felt ashamed of this outburst when he saw it in print. Punch of the following week contained his "After Thought," which ends:

Surely, after all,
The noblest answer unto such
Is kindly silence when they brawl.
—London Chronicle.
